TIME	ACTIVITY	INVOLVED PARTIES
Pacific Daylight Time 12:00pm-1:00pm	Opening Session Mental and Fiscal Wellness Panel Mental health and money problems are often intricately linked. Money can impact our behavior, and our mental health can impact how we manage our money—making it a symbiotic, cyclical relationship. Furthermore, research has shown that finances are one of the primary causes of stress worldwide, with money problems being associated with an increase in mental health issues, particularly depression and anxiety. This session will explore the link between mental and financial well-being, including the intersection of money worries on anxiety, stress, and relationships. Our goal is to set a wellness tone that helps PNE insiders work towards common aims of personal and professional success.
